Easter and Emancipation.

Last evening there was quite an audience at the Colored Lutheran Church in the county to listen to several interesting addresses on emancipation and other topics of special interest by Col. M. M. Holland, Dr. J. R. Wilder, Messrs. Hewlett, Hilyor and others. The church. which has been newly frescoed, presented a lovely appearance. The services during Easter week were very encouraging. The Sabbath school turned out in full force at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon to listen to an instructive address by Rev. M. W. Hamma, D. D., of Calafernia. There were also short addresses by Dr. Burnett of California, and Messrs. R. C. Donglass, Landolph and Rev. Navoaugh. The children all received an Easter present. The pastor, Rev. D. E. Wiseman, told the congreation that their thanks were due for the beauful interior decorations to Mrs. S. Uterment Mrs. Dr. Taylor. Mrs. Norment, Messrs, Albert Fox, Geo. AMUSEMENTS.

ALBAUGH's. - Miss Fanny Davenport has com to be recognized as the one English-speaking exponent of Sardou's wonderful dramatic creations. In "Fedora" and "La Toecs" she gained warm praise from the most exacting critics and added to her former well-earned reputation as an actress of great intensity and power who at times rose to the height of tragic force. In "Cleopatra," which she presented at Albaugh's last night for the first time in this city, Miss Davenport was seen perhaps to better advantage than on any former occasion. The scenic and mechan-ical effects with which this play is surrounded are veritable triumphs of stage realism and were a revelation to the audience last night. Each act presents a picture that is marvelous in its effect and each succeeding picture is more wouderful than its pradecesso The terrace at Memphis, with its stretch of desert and the Nile in the distance, its perfect effect of the sky at night studded with glittering stars and the soft atmosphere of the south, was thought to be the perfection of stage of the start that the state is the start of the effect; but this, artistic though it was, paled before the raging tempest in the fifth act that was so realistic as to cause a shiver and shudder among the more susceptible in the audience at the dazzling flashes of lightning, the sharp peals of thunder, the fierce blasts of wind and the driving rain. Miss Davenport is regal as the Egytian Queen, and in voice, action and appearance justifies the mad and overpowering love and devotion of the great Roman general. Mr. Melbourne McDowell makes an ideal Marc Antony. His noble physique and manly bearing peculiarly fit the war-rior, while his fine elecution and artistic methods enable him to faithfully portray every phase of the complex character of the m who threw away an empire for the love of a woman. The supporting company is fully up to all requirements and the whole performance was satisfactory. Again tonight.

National.—The play at the National last night was the London and New York success. "Lady Barter," written by Mr. Chas. Coghlan, and played by Mr. Coghlan and Miss Rose Coghlan. This engagement of Mr. Coghlan is a special one for Washington only, and that his presence in the play is a marked feature is conceded without argument, for there are few actors who can more gracefully make the most difficult stage work seem so easy that anybody thinks he can do it as den, W. A. B. Matthews; vestrymen, Maj. F. C. well as Coghlan can. As Col. Pearce Mr. Cogh lan met every requirement in every particular Miss Coghian, though somewhat robust and emphatic, yet makes an ideal Lady Barter, and at times she rises to the plane above ordinary excellence in acting. Mr. Sullivan's Lord Brent was made the most of possible, for Mr. Sullivan is a superior actor. As Mary Brent Miss Moreland was really delightful, and her refreshing girlishness was tonic in its effect. All the other parts were well taken, and the whole play was a pleasure. It was followed by Reade's "Nance Oldfield," which, though well done by Miss Coghlan, Miss Palma, Mr. Whiften and Mr. Sulivan, has been so long done, that a suggestion is in order to change the name to "Nance Newfield" and make the libretto fit the score, or words to that effect.

The audience was a good one.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—"Wang," with its glitter and resplendent coloring in stage mounting opened a return engagement in this city at the my of Music last night. It has lost none brilliancy and the throng that saw it bin Thompson and Dr. R. A. Foster. Academy of Music last night. It has lost none showed that it remains a favorite. That big rollicking comedian. De Wolf Hopper, has lost none of his effervescent spirits nor has his peway. All the feminine members of the company possess the merit of good looks, while the male performers are all talented and skillful entertainers. The music is rendered with smoothness and force, the choruses being exceptionally strong.

HARRIS' BIJOU THEATER. — Harris' Bijou

Theater was packed to the doors last night to witness the sensational western drama, entitled "The Rocky Mountain Waif." Little Goldie was the star of the piece and did exceptionally fine emotional acting The play embraces many startling and sensational climaxes and the greatest enthusiasm was brought out by the artistic presentation of these points by an eveniy balanced company, many of whom are bove the average.

KERNAN'S LYCEUM THEATER.—The City

Sports' Burlesque and Specialty Company is the kind that pleases the patrons of Kernau's Ly-ceum Theater and the audiences yesterday afternoon and evening were large and enthusi-astic. "The Workingman's Jubilee" introduced the strength of the company in funny sayings, sensational dances and comic and sentimental songs. Flatow, the Sheridans, the Le Ardo sisters in statue acts, assisted by the ladies of the company; Mile. enjoyed by the audience. THE YALE COLLEGE GLEE AND BANJO CLEB gave an enjoyable concert at the Luther Piace Memorial Church last night. The attendance was very large and the program was well ar-ranged, calculated to show both instrumentalists and vocalists at their best. Many of the numbers were familiar, while some were origimal arrangements, showing ingenuity and abil-ity. The instrumental corps was not large, but they played with excellent precision and effect. The singing force was well balanced complaint of two young ladies, who charged and displayed the result of good training, while that he had spoken to them when they were than ordinary excellence. The applause was entertainment that deserved more liberal patronage than it received at the National Rifles' Hall last night. The club itself fully sustained its excellent reputation in the numbers allotted to it, while its assistants were all satisfactory. Mr. Barry's readings were up to his usual standard. Mr. Chase made a good impression as a baritone singer, Miss Lucas played the violin excellently and Miss Lotta Mills was an effective accompanist. After the program was completed dancing was enjoyed. BLIND TOM. -That musical marvel, for three concerts-tonight, tomorrow after-noon and tomorrow night. "The Fiddle and Bow."—Amusing stories told in the quaint dialect of the Tennessee mountain folk and interesting descriptions of the customs and manners of the people made the lecture which was delivered last evening at the Universalist Church by ex-Gov. Bob Taylor of Tennessee a unique entertainment. Mr. Taylor is familiar with the subject and is an excellent mimic. He kept his audience convulsed with laughter as he related the story of certain phases of life in the country. His descriptions of the country school, the singof certain phases of life in the country. His descriptions of the country school, the singing school, the candy pull, the dance, &c., were inimitable. As Miss Craddock by her dialect novels has made the world familiar with life in the Tennessee mountains, so Gov. Taylor by his lecture illustrates how the dialect is spoken and reproduces the soft drawling nasal tones to and reproduces the soft, drawling nasal tones to perfection. His subject was "The Fiddle and the Bow," and about this musical the the Bow," and about this musical theme he in-terwove the description of character and life and closed with a noble tribute to music.

Those Who Were Up in Judge Kimball's Court This Morning. Three dozen prisoners occupied the three cells at the Police Court this morning, and The Philliam orders were frequent.

when time was called for court to open the procession for Judge Kimball's court on the upper floor started. The leader of the line was a man named Frank Thompson, whose tall silk hat gave him the appearance of a drum Thompson was neatly attired in a suit of dark and satin tie gave him the appearance of a man who had been at the ball the night before. His statement was that he had been visiting Tom, will appear at the Universalist Church his brother at Martinsburg and was given a razor, which the officer exhibited as evidence in the case. Thompson was drunk, and Policeman Lynch arrested him for being disorderly. The court said that as the razor was wrapped in paper it showed that some color was to be given to the prisoner's statement. On the charge of concealed weapons the court took his personal bonds. He paid $5 for being dis-Orderly.

Charles Banks, a young colored man, disputed the statement of a policeman concerning his condition last night, but the court thought that his memory was defective and imposed an $8 tine.

The next called from the line for trial was Robert Clements, who was charged with having erected a shed without a permit and using profane language toward the policeman who arrested him. He did not have $15 and so he

SERGEANT COOPER'S SENTENCES.

Total of $90 or 210 Days on the Farm for His Trouble Yesterday. Judge Kimball's court room was crowded this morning with persons who were anxious to hear the trial of the men who created so much trouble yesterday during the parade at 19th street and Pennsylvania avenue, as published in yesterday's STAR. Sergeant John H. Cooper of the Baltimore Rifles was defendant and there were three charges against him. They were discharging firearms in the street carrying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct. Several policemen appeared as witnesses in the case and described the affair in which the Baltimorean figured as the chief actor. The row started by the discharge of one of the muskets, and as smoke was seen issuing from Cooper's musket, Policeman Doyle attempted to arrest him, and then it was that the trouble came near developing into a riot. Bayonets were drawn upon the officer and all sorts of threatening language was used. Several officers soon reached the scene of the disorder and possibly prevented the killing of Officer Doyle. Cooper was finally secured and on the way to the station a large crowd followed the prisoner and the officers, giving such advice as "don't go," and shouting 'kill the _____"

When the station was reached and the pris oner searched the officers found in his posses-sion a loaded revolver and a box of cartridges for his musket.

Lawyer Moss defended the prisoner, who plead guilty to two charges against him.
Judge Kimball during the trial had to call the prisoner to order more than once and informed him that he was not in Baltimore and that he would have to behave himself.

When the testimony was all in the judge said to the prisoner: "We have plenty of rowdies of Scott Tyler, William Gross and Gus Mullen plead guilty to charges of disorderly conduct and were fined $5 each.

John Morgan was the name of a young man who was charged with being disorderly on Pennsylvania avenue at an early hour this morning. According to John's statement he went down the city last night with a man who said he was going to get married, but he did not, and so they wanted to return home on an avenue car.

would have to behave himself.

When the testimony was all in the judge said to the prisoner: "We have plenty of rowdies of our own without importing any from Baltimore. You must have thought you were in a crowd of Baltimore toughs. The idea of bringing such weapons here on such a day when you should rejoice is a little more than will be tolerated, and the court is only sorry that there are not twenty more of your number here."

The conductor of the car said he refused to permit the defendant and his companion to get on his car, as he always refuses to take on passengers who are intoxicated.

In the case of concealed weapons a fine of permit the defendant and his companion to get the other cases the fine was $20 or sixty days, making a total of $90 or 210 days on the farm. on his car, as he always refuses to take on passengers who are intoxicated.

Judge Kimball commended him for his action and said he would always uphold conductors who would stick to that rule.

Morgan was fined $10.

Benjamin Cox, Henry Jackson and George Wilson were charged $5 each for disorderly conduct, and Charley Banks was assessed $3 in the conduct of that reality.

The other cases the fine was $20 or sixty days, making a total of $90 or 210 days on the farm. Samuel Payne, a Washingtonian who was arrested about the same time, forfeited $10.

Reverdy Johnson, also a member of the Baltimore Rifles, plead guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct.

"I'm a stranger in the feity," he said. "I live in Baltimore, where I have always been respected as a gentlesse and the interval of the conduct of the passes.

A fine of $25 was imposed.
